Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament and Peace (CNDP)

2nd National Convention

November 26-28, 2004, Jaipur

Dear Friend,

The emerging situation confronts the global peace movement with challenges it has never before faced: How to halt, and roll back, recent setbacks to multilateralism, rule of law and peaceful means of conflict resolution? How to combat the new Empire the United States wants to build to achieve untrammelled global domination through raw military force untempered by international norms? Which levers must we seize to reverse the damage to the goals of universal disarmament of weapons of mass destruction (WMD), peace and justice?

After the 1998 nuclear tests, South Asia has undeniably become a potential nuclear flashpoint, making our responsibility to fight for a regional and global nuclear free world all the more important.

The Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament and Peace (CNDP), India, was therefore, set up through the collective initiative of some 120 civil society organisations and people's movements at a National Convention in New Delhi in November 2000, attended by over 700 delegates. These diverse organisations were appalled at the crossing of the nuclear threshold in South Asia and India's embrace of those very strategic doctrines, which it had rejected for 50 years. We believe - and continue to be convinced - that nuclear weapons everywhere create insecurity, not security. They must be abolished.

CNDP's adherents and supporters have since grown in number to over 200 organisations, and many more individuals. It held a Northern India Regional Convention in Delhi in November 2002 as well as numerous state and city level conferences. The CNDP has tried to broaden the scope of its activities by making structural connections between peace and nuclear disarmament and other burning problems of the day, including militarism, national chauvinism, religious ethnic communalism, and the people's basic needs and priorities. To further expand and consolidate our activities, the CNDP is organising its 2nd National Convention in Jaipur from 26th to 28th November 2004.

We invite you to attend this 2nd National Convention of CNDP. Please do let us know if you can attend. You will appreciate that financially we are unable to cover travel costs. All participants and delegates, foreign and Indian, will have to cover their costs of travelling to and from the Jaipur Convention. However, we will arrange for all local hospitality, namely boarding and lodging for all participants and delegates for the three days from 26th to 28th November, 2004. However, those who will arrive on 25th and leave 29th morning, the accommodation for them will be arranged on prior notice.
